Black and White: Why Are the Piano Keys Weighted?: Reflections from a Colored Girl's Perspective

Kristy Pierce

I started writing more than ten years ago, not really knowing what I was doing. Images started filling my head, and it was becoming clearer that life was more than just living. It was a journey, and everything that happened and the people I passed along each path were significant, helping me become who I am. There are so many things I remember now, that I thought I had forgotten—forgotten because they made me mad or hurt so badly that I didn't want to remember. What I realize now is that everything in my life had to happen just the way it did. For every person who has experienced the confusion of growing up like a cup of cappuccino, know that no matter what you're mixed with, you are amazing! We are amazing from a colored girl's perspective.
